Candy Washington is an actress, blogger, on-camera host, social media influencer, and the founder, of Actress with Style, a popular lifestyle brand focused on fashion, beauty, entertainment, and travel that's geared toward the active millennial.

She is also the founder of The Billionaire Blogger Society, a global community of creative professionals who seek to build profitable, purposeful, and successful blogs, brands, and businesses - all on their own terms.

Candy can be seen on the upcoming digital series about millennials attempting to "adult" produced by Endemol Shine Group. You can also see her on The Doctors on CBS as an on-camera talent and social media expert. She's also an on-camera host for Disney Style on Disney Digital and she has also appeared in the TBS show, Are We There Yet? and in You Rock, Let's Roll, on FUSE.

She's also done extensive script coverage for Emmy award-winning writer and producer Lena Waithe. Additionally, Candy is a V.I.P. Influencer for FOX shows Empire, STAR, Lethal Weapon, and Pitch. She's also partnered with Lionsgate as a social media influencer for their launch and red carpet premiere of Power Rangers.

Candy was recently a panelist during a premiere beauty conference, BlushCon, on How to Build Your Audience and Monetize It, and the digital series, The Ratchet Pack, that Candy starred in was screened during the Indie Night Film Festival.

Featured and published in Teen Vogue, Refinery29, BuzzFeed, Simply Stylist, Independent Fashion Bloggers, PopSugar, BRINK Magazine, FOX Magazine, The Stream TV, Muses, and more, Candy has solidified herself as a sought-after actor, influencer, and expert in her field, as well as a go-to resource for on-camera talent, social media strategy, and lifestyle tips.

Candy graduated from Georgetown University and she also received a scholarship to the New York Conservatory for Dramatic Arts and has studied at Margie Haber Acting Studio and at the BGB Studios, and has privately studied with the esteemed Gary Marks and Saxon Trainor.
