ABOUT THE BLOG

Tea for Me Please is the story of my journey with the leaf. It started in 2018 as a side project during my stint as a staff reviewer for Teaviews.com. Since then, tea has become a connective force in my life, opening doors and making friends from around the world. Outside of the blog, you'll see me speaking and teaching classes at events like World Tea Expo and regional tea festivals.

ABOUT OUR READERS

My readers fall into two categories; those who are just beginning their journey and those that are serious tea heads. My approach is to focus on directly sourced specialty teas in an approachable way that benefits both groups. The tea industry as a whole still has a lot of work to do when it comes to educating the general public. I see Tea for Me Please as my contribution to filling that need.
