

Jahangir Khan

A small preview of my life on instagram..

Dear reader,

I'm more known as JayKay, i am about 23 year old.

I never joined instagram for popularity or fame, i was already known for my positive approach for opportunities outside the social media world.

Since i've been empowered to be myself , slowly and gradually fame/popularity found me on instagram also because of my height i am about 6'2 (184cm) haha, I'm a lifestyle blogger basically sharing with the world of what i do/use/purchase and how and where i travel.

Coming to a point now where i am now, i want to monetize or grow my instagram in a new path of collaborations, i am sending you this business portfolio as i'd like to collab with you.

HIGHER EDUCATION

By Jahangir Khan

Search of excellence

After completing my high school in Karachi, I had the opportunity of going to a foreign country for higher studies. I chose Malaysia because quite a few things attracted me to this country: I've been visiting this beautiful country almost yearly since 2008. I was really impressed by the fact that the preservation of nature is taken very seriously here. It is a country that is constantly developing, building skyscrapers such as the Petronas Twin Towers, which was the tallest building in the world from 1998-2004, and is currently the sixth tallest building. And, of course, the fact that Malaysia will be a fully developed country by 2020 is just fascinating.

I arrived at Limkokwing University of Creative Technology which is a world in itself. When I stepped into the university, the first thing I noticed was this alluring diversity in the campus. I had the opportunity to meet people from more than 100 countries worldwide. It's just amazing to be able to meet so many different cultures and people from countries you've never heard about in one place.

Language barrier is usually a big issue when going to a foreign country. In Malaysia, they tend to balance the problem by promoting their language but everyone basically speaks English or understands it. Also, teaching of English as a language has a high priority in the country.

Limkokwing University campuses are also found in Botswana, Cambodia, China, Indonesia, Lesotho, Sierra Leone, Swaziland, United Kingdom and Yemen.

Anyway, I started my studies with a Foundation in Business Studies course, and that's when my life began to change. Just after the last day of the orientation, I was approached by the student ambassadors of different countries, outlining a number of great opportunities. It seemed so surreal! I had photo shoots for the brochures which promote the university on both local and international platforms. I started working for my own university brand which is the world's first fashion label introduced by a university and I launched it in Pakistan recently through a magazine.

I represented Pakistan at a ceremony in which a global peace award was presented to Malaysia's very own former Prime Minister YABhg Tun Dr Mahathir bin Mohamad. It was a highly prestigious event in which I wore my traditional clothes and Pakistani badge.

The best part about studying in Malaysia is that food isn't hard to find ... whether it's local Indian cuisine available in Mamak restaurants where one can get barbecues and a variety of other local Indian dishes. It's delicious and somehow could relate to Pakistani cuisine with just a bit of extra spice; or, you can find stalls on the sidewalks which have Malaysian satay dishes. Finding food late at nights is never an issue here, either. What I personally love about Malaysia is that they have variety of diversified cuisines mainly Chinese, Malaysian, Indian and Middle Eastern. Moreover, halal food isn't an issue as Malaysia is an Islamic country.

Regarding the weather, all I can say is that it's heaven on earth! Despite the blazing sun, or the haze from Indonesia, the weather is usually amazing with constant rain.

My university is in Cyberjaya's where the architecture is modern and it has a lot of greenery. Here, living expenses are considerably less than Kuala Lumpur. Moreover, tuition wise, Malaysia's universities aren't that expensive compared to other countries, especially with the amount of scholarships they offer. They offer humanitarian scholarships to a number of countries, like Syria, Palestine and Pakistan. The scholarship or 'discount' is eligible for anyone that comes from these countries. This is Malaysia's way of providing higher education to students from these less fortunate countries.

They also offer academic scholarships for anyone who is eligible, like for example, if I score a 4.0 GPA, I could apply for a 100 percent scholarship. There's something called spouse discount where if you have a husband or a wife working in the university, you could get a tuition fee discount. Also, there's the siblings discount for siblings in the university. Limkokwing also offers Semester 4+ students a chance to work and gain experience within the university. I think this is what makes this university so special - you don't just gain a degree when you graduate, you also gain experience and connections which you give you a plus when starting to look for jobs.

It's so easy to find accommodation in Cyberjaya to suit all kinds of budgets. The university provides the on campus hostel which is basically a dormitory. They also provide off campus accommodation called the Arc which is an apartment-like.

Furthermore, all throughout Cyberjaya there are condominiums that provide apartments for students at cheap, affordable prices. New condominiums are constantly being built here in Cyberjaya which gives more options to students. They're all very affordable and come in types: unfurnished, for the ones who want to furnish the whole house on their own, semi-furnished where you only find kitchen cabinets, ACs, fridges, etc., and lastly fully furnished, for the ones that just want a ready furnished house and not to have to worry about buying furniture for the house. Of course, the costs vary for each type, with the fully furnished being the most expensive.

Turkey, UK, Australia and the USA are all great countries, but I recommend students to do good research and compare tuition fees and scholarships provided by them before opting for a university anywhere. Good luck!

3 Core Traits

Unapologetically Myself;

One of the core reason behind my Instagram success is that i am no one but myself.

Too much in my comfort zone;

This trait may sound bit negative, but it defines me and i am stepping out of it.

Stay healthy mentally & physically;

We all workout, i do too.

But i am a firm believer of being healthy internally too.

Get to know me

I hope you enjoyed the slideshow, it took days, yes i know it might not look appealing but i have never approached a brand myself before as formal as like this.

Yet i am putting myself out there just for you to take a look at your potential social media influencer, i don't want to lie nor brag so i displayed strictly my collaborations and features even though most of them aren't my favorite pictures but they represent my achievements.

To know more about me you can have a good look at my instagram: Jay._kaaaay or i'm an email away.

I hope to get a feed back from you.

Thankyou,
JayKay
