About Brana Dane

Brana Dane is a SuperModel. She has appeared in numerous publications such as Porter Magazine, Forbes, Vogue Italia and Harper's Bazaar highlighting her ethical modeling efforts.

She has worked for some of the top brands including Maison Margiela, Herno, Samantha Sung, Michael Costello, L'Oreal and more.

She is an active member of the fashion community and one of the many leaders in the model activist group, "Model Mafia". She has recently been seen hosting for FNL Network on Amazon Prime globally, as well as keeping up her written interview work at Bella Magazine and other publications.

Her mission is to inspire others to be true to themselves and follow their own unique path. She has been painting for over a decade and has had recent gallery shows in Chelsea, Tribeca, the Hamptons and Brooklyn – including the Caelum Gallery. She shares her love of art with other models by holding guided art workshops to promote emotional healing and body appreciation.

Brana believes that modeling is just another art form in which she is truly expressing herself authentically. Human understanding and embracing differences in every individual can give the freedom, space and opportunity for grace.
