ABOUT ME

At Everyday Girl Dad, I try and share the stories behind the relationship between a dad and daughters. The image of the dad standing with a gun as his daughter poses with her date on prom night is a tired one. I share the times a dad reads Harry Potter until midnight with his daughter, the time he spends cheering her on at her baseball game, the tattoos he gets of their random drawings, and the times they sit down to talk about anything they want while painting their nails. I want dads to constantly be reassured it's okay to cry, to express emotion and to be wildly in love with their daughters.

We're committed to showing the world what masculinity can mean and how open a relationship dads and daughters can have. More than anything we show that girls rule.
