SOPHEAK CHHENG

Profile

Sopheak was born at Site II camp in 1986 and moved to live along the railroad at the border area later in the 90's. At his younger age, we was living in the area where gunfire was an every life entertainment noise. Life was so hard that his family could not afford to raise him. So, he had to live with a monk whom somehow he regards as a grandfather. He lived with the monk for more than 5 years.

He was very keen to know more about photography when he picked up a camera that was dropped on a street for the first time. He played with it and it became his hobby since then. Lucky enough combined with his hard work for his love for studying, he got a UWC scholarship to Norway. And that how his fortune has changed ever since. He was the only Cambodian who knew very little English to the point where he could only understand basic conversation like “Hello! How are you? I’m fine, and you?” That was it! He knew that he could loose his scholarship if he didn’t push himself to learn English. He had tried his best, and put his all. With the help from his teachers and his own effort, he managed to catch up with classes. Two years later, he got another scholarship to study at Middlebury college in the United States. Four years past, he finished it with double degree in Philosophy and Studio Arts, and returned to Cambodia with a dream to explore photography and videography.

It wasn’t easy to start doing anything related to his dream for photography and videography at first because the market wasn’t ready for what he loves yet, so he was working at a company where he could continue to work on photography and videography area as Sabay TV manager. After four years, he started to realize his dream as he decided to focus on Rean Thort where he could share his photography and videography knowledge for free with Cambodians full-time in 2017. With countless trails, and frustration, he has managed to share with his audience about what he learns and tries. Public has started to recognize his talent for what he is doing.

Sopheak lives by his own motto “Learn, Earn, and Return”!
