ABOUT ME:

Hi! My name is Ryann and I run The Hippie Mom Blog.

I am 28 and am a mother of two young daughters. My oldest girl is almost 7 and my youngest is 1 and a half. I am an educator by trade and at heart but I have many other passions.

One of my passions is to help other like minded individuals. I went through a very hard time in my journey to health, self discovery and coming to love and value myself. During this journey, I found that affirmations and affirming truths about myself helped me tremendously. I love to share this knowledge with other women.

Another passion I have is mothering. I feel like I was born to be a mother and caring for my two girls is the greatest joy I have experienced. I had my oldest at 21 and having her at a younger age has taught me so many life lessons that I love to share with other mothers.

Finally, in learning to embrace and love myself as a woman and mother, I came to adore my naturally curly hair and the curly hair textures of my daughters. I love to experiment with new products and natural DIY recipes to grow our hair to new lengths and increase our overall hair health.

ABOUT THE BLOG:

The Hippie Mom Blog is a blog dedicated to helping and serving others.

The blog offers advice and tips on mothering, recommendations for products and services that would benefit and serve other people in a positive way, helping people achieve the life of their dreams by using affirmations, guiding people in loving themselves, self care, and self acceptance, and advice and tips on embracing their natural hair and how to properly care for it and allow it to reach its maximum potential.

FAQ:

- Why is your blog called The Hippie Mom?

When I started on my self care/self acceptance journey, I started researching and using more natural, plant based products and using more sustainable items. My family and close friends started saying, "You're such a hippie" and so The Hippie Mom was born.

-How can this blog serve others?

My goal in creating this online platform is to serve others. I want to be a source of help and guidance for people struggling with self love and self acceptance. I also create content for those looking for answers or support with natural hair and/or living more naturally.
