about the blogger

My name is Sabrina and I am growing my account and personal brand. I am a lifestyle blogger based out of Chicago. I am fully dedicated and in the business of collaborating with brands while building an authentic connection to my audience. As a micro-influencer, I can be beneficial in that I have a loyal following base and genuine connection to my followers. Some of my favorite things to post and blog about include fashion, beauty products, food, and fitness. My goal is to work on campaigns that I truly love and believe in, while staying true to myself.

about the blog

I began blogging back in 2017 and I stopped for a while to figure out what direction I wanted my blog to go. Since then, I have had time to revamp and build my blog into everything I imagined it to be. I post about product favorites, fashion finds, home decor, as well as a glimpse into my life that people may relate to, such as struggles I face or activities that I enjoy.

My blog has 2,092 views since the beginning of January 2020 and has reached 29 different countries through different sources of exposure.
